A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRESIDENT

In 2019, we gained a new understanding of just how important the mission to build Hero’s Rest is.

Throughout the year, especially during the Hero’s Rest Development Campaign, we became aware of a small but growing movement seeking to honor first responders and meet their needs. Talking with others in this movement, we have learned new approaches that will greatly aid in reaching first responders with rest and hope. Those we have networked with, many from the first responder world, have confirmed the rarity of what we are doing with Hero’s Rest while expressing the serious need for it.

We are excited to be joining this amazing movement and look forward to serving those we have been collaborating with. Your support has allowed us to continue serving trauma survivors (read some of their stories in this report) AND brought us closer to opening the first-ever retreat center for first responders. Thank you! But we still need your help. Please consider giving to the Hero’s Rest Development Campaign. Please pray that the Lord will bring us to the location he has for us. Please join the movement with us and reach first responders in a new and exciting way.

Thank You and God Bless,
Rev. Ryan Hatch

Exiting an abusive relationship can FEEL like you are abandoning someone, even while that someone is inflicting severe harm. With guidance from Shalam Staff, Jenny* recently chose to leave an abusive husband because of his continuous, violent behavior against her. We are so proud of Jenny for the strength, courage, and resolve she has shown! She is choosing what IS true over what feels true.

In 2019 we shared stories from survivors that Shalam Ministries had helped. We tagged them #shalamstories. Here are 3 stories from survivors this year!

In 2019 we shared stories from survivors that Shalam Ministries had helped. We tagged them #shalamstories. Here are 3 stories from survivors this year!

Growing up in a dysfunctional family, Dillon* never learned the importance of healthy boundaries. With Shalam he learned to differentiate between relationships that would help him in his healing journey and those that would draw him back to destructive coping mechanisms. Today, Dillon is setting healthy boundaries to help him avoid temptation, allowing him to grow and heal from his trauma!

Joy* contacted Shalam Ministries seeking help leaving a life-threatening relationship. Shalam staff immediately began regular calls with her, offering extra help in crisis. Joy wanted her story shared, saying: "If it were not for the consistent support of Shalam Ministries I am sure I would have given up and returned to the abuse situation I was able to escape from. During this difficult valley in my life, Shalam has been a beacon of light allowing me to see that I am not walking this path alone."
Even though they face trauma daily in their work, there are currently no retreat centers for first responders in the US!

Responding to this major need, in 2019 Shalam Ministries officially announced Hero's Rest retreat center for first responders and their families.

We launched the Hero's Rest Campaign in 2019 to build the retreat center and have raised 30% of the needed funds! Make your vital pledge to the campaign at shalam.org/donate.
